

5. Dost thou withdraw thy grace?

John Danyel

Dost, dost thou withdraw thy grace, dost, O dost thou withdraw thy grace because I should not love, and think'st thou to remove my affections with thy face? As if yes, that love did hold no part, but more, more is desire there where thy beauty lies, and were not in my heart greater than where it wounds and pines, as fire is far more fire where it burns in thy fair eyes. Ah than where it shines!
