

19. What delight can they enjoy?

John Danyel

What de- light can they en- joy, whose hearts are not their own, but are gone, but are gone a- broad a- stray and to o- thers' bo- soms flown. Sil- ly com- forts, sil- ly joy, which fall and rise, and rise as o- thers move, who sel- dom use, who sel- dom use to turn, to turn our way. And there- fore Clo- ris will not love, for well I see how false men be, and they must pine that lov- ers prove, sil- ly prove.

1) Note sharpened in orig.

2) Repeat implied by the dotted note in all the parts, implying a pickup on the repeat.